Yoshizawa was born on 22 September 2009 in Kanagawa, Japan, and grew up in Sagamihara.[3][4] At the age of seven, she first tried out skateboarding through the influence of her brother.[4] She initially viewed it as "just a hobby" and learned tricks from someone at a local park.[4] At the age of 11, she watched the Tokyo 2021 Olympics and saw 13-year-old Momiji Nishiya win the gold medal with a move that Yoshizawa had already been able to perform.[5]

She did not have a phone at the time and did not use social media, and thus she "wasn't plugged into skateboarding culture

[and] she and her family had no idea how good she was," according to Self.[6]
